

The Special Puppy

By Georgia Loughton

The special puppy

There was a little boy called Ben. He had wished for one thing and one thing only for every birthday and every Christmas and that was a dog. One year he was so lonely he became very ill and he was taken into hospital. He got back eleven days before his birthday. Eleven days later he woke up and opened his presents. He went to his nana's house at half past twelve and stayed there. His nana went out then a few hours later she arrived at home with a present. Ben opened it. He was so happy his wish had come true! He had a puppy! He went home that day.

Better now

Ben loved his puppy more and more and gradually the puppy got better and better at learning tricks and other things. Ben was also feeling better at school because he had stopped being bullied. He was a very popular boy but he was not that bothered because his life was all about the new puppy he had. He decided to call the puppy 'Buddy' because he and the puppy had become really close and they were best friends. The puppy would never leave him and as they played and played over the years their friendship became stronger. His nana had become really poorly and, when Ben found out, he became very unhappy too. But along as he had his new puppy buddy by his side he knew he would always be safe and happy.

Nana

His nana didn't get any better and as the year went on his nana got worse and worse. Then sadly she died. But Buddy was always there to cheer Ben up. Ben missed his nana and wished she was still there because he loved her so much. He always knew that she would never come back but she was still alive in his mind. Later that year Ben's granddad was getting really ill just like his nana and he then died but Ben would always have his dog

Buddy to cheer him up still.

15th Birthday

By the time that Ben reached 15 he found out that Buddy was pregnant and she had five little puppies. Ben named all the little puppies - Demon, Hunny, Buddy junior, Sam and Joe. And since he had gone from having one puppy to five, it was his second best birthday! He would never forget the birthday when he first got Buddy though. That was the best.
